

Interface: Personalized Interior Designing Solutions

■ Architect Kunal Barve,
Founder

There has been a radical change in the way people used to perceive interior designing. Earlier residential interiors were not in vogue and very few people realized what a space means and how interior designers can enhance the look and feel. But there is a different perspective now, as consumers have developed an aesthetic sense, and acknowledge that interior designing is not merely filling up one's space, but coordinating each and every element of the home, making it look not only aesthetically beautiful, but making it as a lifestyle, this is majorly because of the global awareness and internet that has transformed life and the overall outlook of each individual.

Interface was established in 2004, Interface continuously strives to create architecture and interiors that is regionally sympathetic, and well-grounded in its context. "We work hard with stubborn freshness, unshakable lightness and optimistic attitude to learn from past and imagine a different and better future. We are known for designing projects of exceptional materials and quality with a strong conceptual basis derived from specific needs and aspirations of each client," says Kunal.

With a wide experience of 12+ years in this designing field, Kunal explains how the most important thing for them is to understand what the client really wants. "Sometimes the clients are not even sure what kind of style they are looking for. We show them a lot of references to help them choose designs. After the selection of the

When you trust your instincts and allow yourself the freedom to bring together elements you love, things will surely fall in its place. That's how you end up creating vibrant and layered spaces style, we formulate a detailed design brief and the entire design process is divided into four parts; the concept stage, schematic design stage, detail drawings and then the execution. We thoroughly explain them about the process. To meet the highest standards of designing, Kunal and his team meticulously uses of software's such as Auto CAD, Sketch up, 3D max that helps them in comparing different design options, sizes, proportions, patterns and textures. Although technology helps deliver design in an efficient way, Kunal believes design is something which is in the heart and mind. He says, "A designer needs a channel to communicate the language of design to the clients and technology becomes that channel. But sometimes, for us, a mere sketch portrays the dreams of the clients and is able to match with their requirements."

Over a period of time, Interface has earned prestigious clients out of which some are celebrities, industrialists, top builders, and bankers from India and even outside India. "My whole idea of designing, is to help my clients discover and express their taste, rather than impose my own, having my strong viewpoint with a method that really works, we really enjoy what we do. I love to push my envelope with texture, pattern, colors and a particular way of organizing a space. The technique of layering a space and adding humor into my design makes my work different from others", he concludes. ■